CCAV Annual Conference

Join us for an unmissable event dedicated to shaping the cemeteries of tomorrow! This conference is your opportunity to gain insights, explore innovations, and connect with peers on key industry developments.

Hear from leading experts, engage with inspiring guest speakers, and discover forward-thinking strategies that will drive the future of cemetery management.

Our Partners

We are once again thrilled to extend our heartfelt thanks and appreciation to our outstanding partners for their steadfast support of CCAV throughout the year.

Our partners are deeply invested in our industry, dedicating time and resources to forge strong, lasting relationships. Their loyalty to our association is something we continue to earn by giving them thoughtful consideration in our purchasing and service tendering decisions. Their commitment enables us to offer subsidized event costs for all members, and we are truly grateful for their invaluable contributions.

Allyson Fletcher

Bringing over 16 years' experience, Allyson has a wealth of knowledge for Human Resources and she has recently completed her Masters of Human Resource Management. She has an extensive background in the Health Care, Construction and Automotive industries.

At KBA she is driven to help her clients by carefully listening to their needs and working closely with the team to help achieve business goals and positive outcomes. Her positive and bubbly nature is infectious and makes her a delight to work with.

When Allyson isn't at work, you will find her laughing and socialising with friends as well as spending time with her son. Her love for travelling has turned into a hobby and allows her to see the world from a different lens.

Our Speakers

Dr Maiken Ueland

Maiken Ueland is the Director of The Australian Facility for Taphonomic Experimental Research (AFTER) and an Associate Professor at UTS. She is a leader in the field of forensic taphonomy, where she uses analytical, biochemical, and spectroscopic techniques to conduct human post-mortem investigations.

Dr Ueland's main research areas are human decomposition chemistry with special focus on markers in tissue and odour and their use in criminal investigations, including locating missing persons and estimating time since death. Her interest lies in the interface between forensic science and analytical chemistry.

Her current work focuses on developing methods for the successful location and recovery of victims in mass disaster scenarios using electronic nose technology and sophisticated analytical instrumentation. Dr Ueland also uses her knowledge in odour analysis in the investigation of wildlife crime and conservation.

Sach Killam

Sach Killam is a monument heritage specialist for Metropolitan Memorial Parks in NSW.

Based at Rookwood for the past 16 years, and building on 20 years cemetery experience in Canada, Sach and the Monumental-Heritage team complete extensive in-house safety works as well as external contracts. These contracts include Councils, Heritage and Friends Groups, other NSW State organisations, RSLs, and families, with speciality services including traditional lead lettering and lime-based stone conservation.

Sach has been completing monument safety and conservation surveys since 1998. Sach has brought and delivered practices used in Canada, (and developed in reference to British Standards), to Rookwood and subsequently to all Metropolitan Memorial Parks sites as well as Council cemeteries and the Catholic Cemeteries and Crematoria in Rookwood.

A passionate advocate for cemetery safety and heritage preservation, Sach was a member of the Australian Standards committee which developed AS4204:2019.

Important Information

HISTORY ALIVE GEELONG EASTERN CEMETERY

Queenscliff Cemetery

Step back in time as costumed interpreters bring Geelong's history to life, sharing the remarkable stories of notable figures in the very place they rest.

Let hosts Caroline Newcomb and Robert de Bruce Johnstone introduce you to Reverend Andrew Love, Captain Foster Fyans and the world's finest actor Francis Nesbitt.

Explore the cemetery's rich history and evolution, the development of the final stage, and its unique natural features.

This presentation and walking tour led by Frank de Groot, Geelong Cemeteries Trust's Director of Projects, Development and Innovation, will take you through the Moonah Walk; a natural burial area recognised for its environmental significance and award-winning design.

Terms and Conditions

The "Tours" relate to the History Alive Tour at Geelong Eastern Cemetery and the Presentation and Walking Tour at Queenscliff Cemetery on Thursday 26 March 2026.

Timing: Each Tour begins at the main entrance of its respective cemetery. Tours run for approximately 60 minutes, although the duration is influenced by attendees' capacity to maintain pace with the tour guide.

Accessibility: These Tours take place within the old sections of the cemeteries, on a range of different and uneven surfaces including grass and gravel, which may have restricted wheelchair access in some pathways. There is a reasonable amount of walking, frequent stops and periods of standing, with no seating available at these stops.

Content: The Tours are suitable for a range of ages, however attendees under 18 must be accompanied by an adult. Some stories shared during the Tours may include themes that could be triggering or emotionally difficult for some attendees.

General: As these Tours are held outdoors, it is recommended to dress for the forecasted weather and if needed, bring your own umbrella. Attendees are expected to conduct themselves in a respectful, responsible and safe manner throughout the Tours.

By registering for a Tour, attendees agree to these terms and conditions.
